Country Risk Analysis

OVERVIEW

Country risk refers to the risk arising from investing/lending in a foreign country, which may affect the value of the investment, in terms of operating profits or value of assets, or the ability of the borrower to repay the debt. This training course is designed for professionals seeking to build and enhance their skills in analyzing country risk in their everyday work. Country risk is neither easy to define nor gauge as its measurement is the combination of complex financial, economic, social and political variables. Course participants will be introduced to SACE's multi-dimensional approach to country risk evaluation – also summarized in the Country Risk Map – as well as key factors in assessing risks in emerging markets. Specific focus will be placed on Political Risks Insurance (PRI), a tool for managing risks arising from adverse actions – or inaction – of governments or from political events that may lead to physical damage and/or financial losses.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

To provide participants with an analytical methodology and tools for country risk assessment in emerging markets, the course will focus on the SACE country risk assessment methodology in its different dimensions and diverse perspectives. Case studies, real-life examples and exercises will ensure highly interactive and practical coursework.

Participants will learn to:

- Better understand how risks are assessed
- Apply a structured approach to country risk assessment
- Calculate and interpret key economic and financial ratios used in risk assessment
- Understand the key drivers of country risk in emerging markets
- Identify qualitative and quantitative market indicators of vulnerability
- Understand the basic elements of political risks (expropriation risk, transfer risk, political violence risk and breach of contract) and PRI.
