OVERVIEW

In a global economy increasingly sensitive to environmental and social pressures, understanding how to manage non-traditional risk such as environmental and social issues is set to become part of normal business. This practical and interactive training is designated for professionals seeking to establish and implement effective environmental risk management systems within the Export Credit Agency. Born directly in response to the needs of practitioners, the training course is distinctly action-oriented, strong in methodology and tools that institutions can adjust and inspire themselves from.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

To provide participants with a clear understanding of the methodology used to identify potential environmental and social risks associated to the projects for which your clients seek financial services. During this main part of the workshop, participants are invited to identify, assess and manage environmental and social risks using real examples.

The training seeks to:

- Illustrate the environmental and social risks involved in lending and investing projects as a consequence of your clients' businesses
- Explore next steps in terms of promoting the efficient implementation of environmental risk analysis
- Train participants on what to do in order to detect, reduce and assess environmental and social risks through tools used on an international basis

TUITION

Tuition is provided by highly qualified professionals and executives, with know-how based on proven working experience and comprehensive knowledge of core issues.
