Communication & promotion

OVERVIEW

In today's intense business environment, effective communication is essential to leverage relations with clients and exploiting all business opportunities the market has to offer. However, the promotion of export credit and trade finance products is a difficult task due to their complexity and the specific set of rules that regulates the ECA industry. ECAs worldwide operate in a peculiar framework far from any other financial institution. They therefore need to address the promotion of their brand and products in innovative ways. Fully-integrated communication encompasses all types of interactions that an insurance company has with its stakeholders, especially the customers. With more than 30 years of experience in structuring trade finance and export credit transactions, SACE has developed strong skills and experience in these fields. This course will help define and plan an effective corporate communication strategy based on the understanding of customer needs and the specificities of the market of reference. It will also cover SACE's approach and tools for an effective corporate communication and products promotion.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

During the course, we will discuss the purpose of a corporate communication strategy and how to implement it in respect of corporate objectives.

The participants will be able to:

- Understand the importance of corporate communication linked to corporate objectives and branding
- Develop, plan and implement the main drivers of an effective communication strategy
- Conduct an external and internal corporate communications audit
- Explore traditional, innovative tools and other solutions to maximize returns on communication activities.

TUITION

Tuition will be provided by highly qualified professionals, with proven experience and comprehensive knowledge of the relevant fields. The course may be customized to meet the real needs of participants.
